Bombardier flying high in Wichita

Bombardier, an aerospace company based in Montreal, Quebec, has more than 18,800 employees worldwide, including 3,100 U.S.-based employees. Bombardier has maintained a strong presence in Wichita, Kansas, reinforcing its commitment to the region's rich aviation heritage.

In April 2022, Bombardier designated its Wichita facility as its new Bombardier Group U.S. headquarters, highlighting the site's growth and multi-disciplinary expertise. Over the past five years, the Wichita service center has experienced a significant transformation. By reorganizing existing hangar space, the site expanded its customer services and support capabilities, increasing the total number of hangars from three to seven. These changes reflect Bombardier's commitment to supporting its global fleet of more than 5,100 aircraft — including 2,000 Learjet business jets — and securing its position as a major contributor to the Wichita workforce.

In October 2024, Bombardier Defense celebrated the successful first flight of the PEGASUS aircraft, a modified Bombardier Global 6000, in Wichita. This milestone highlights the advanced capabilities of the Wichita team in aircraft modification and testing. Further strengthening its role in defense, Bombardier delivered the first Global 6500 aircraft to the U.S. Army's HADES program in November 2024. This delivery underscores the company's expanding footprint in defense projects and its commitment to supporting U.S. military initiatives. These accomplishments demonstrate Bombardier's significant contributions to Wichita's aviation sector and its ongoing commitment to innovation, job creation, and aerospace excellence.
